

Traditional Criminal History Searches (County, State and Federal)

GIS

GIS' traditional criminal history searches are known for advanced technology and high quality. With top-notch county, state and federal searches, we have you covered no matter what you're searching.

The GIS Difference:

VeriCourt.

GIS' automated jurisdiction search technology allows us to access thousands of courts and jurisdictions and return results more quickly than could be possible with court reporters, taking our turnaround time to as little as one hour in some areas.

National network of researchers.

In rare instances where VeriCourt is not utilized, GIS relies on our nationwide network of hundreds of court researchers who are standing by to physically research court records on site.

Quality.

When records are found, GIS checks every single report before providing it to our clients. Where other screening companies avoid human interaction, GIS prides ourselves on using both technology and humans to ensure that you are getting the most reliable information possible.

Types of Searches.

- County – County criminal searches return information from the courthouse records where the conviction is recorded. County searches include felonies and misdemeanors where applicable.
- State – Yields information for all counties in a given state, useful for discovering crimes outside the immediate area where an applicant lives or works.
- Federal – A federal criminal search will check U.S. District Courts for offenses that are federally prosecuted and enforced by the FBI, DEA, ATF, etc.
